DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The information disclosure statement has been received and considered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 13-16 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the elements. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted elements are: Claim 13 line 1 claims "if an intention of a driver to drive off is registered..." without claiming structure (a method step) necessary for this to happen. The limitations of claim 16 should be moved to the beginning of claim 13, for example.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 12-22 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zechmann et al. in view of Murakami.

Regarding claims 12 Zechmann et al. shows a hill-holder brake system in figures 4a-4d that can maintain the braking force independent of the degree of depression of the brake pedal and that can reduce the braking force if the accelerator pedal is actuated. See claim 1. In col. 4 line 36 Zechmann discloses a gradient sensor can be used to determine the slope of the road during the activation of the hill-holder routine. Although not applied see also the reference to Siepker for what is old and well known in the art of hill-holder systems.

Lacking in Zechmann is holding the brake pressure as a function of the gradient angle.

Murakami teaches this idea is known in the art and states that a stepped reduction in wheel cylinder pressure is dependent upon the slope of the road. See the abstract bottom of col. 3 and col. 4 in it's entirety. Note also col. 25 lines 42-50 where pressure hold times 'TB' are used as well.

One having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention would have found it obvious to have modified Zechmann, with the teachings of Murakami, to expand the versatility of the system of Zechmann so that it may apply to braking vehicles on downhills, such as in parking applications.

Regarding claims 13-22 to have tailored the pressure holding times, as desired, dependent upon the grade of the road would have been an obvious engineering choice to the ordinary skilled worker in the art to minimize rocking or jerking vehicle sensations experienced by the driver once the vehicle is started in motion again on a slope.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Please see the references cited for what is old and well known in the art.
